Dear Henry:

Congratulations on your new and no doubt exceedingly challenging job. I trust that you are also finding it very enjoyable.

May I ask your help and advice. I used to receive the biweekly International Energy Statistical Review. It was my Bible -- by far the best and most reliable and most timely data source. It was very useful in providing a uniform base for public discussion and education on energy, and of very high quality.

Alas, along with others, my subscription was abruptly stopped in early summer. I gather that the list was simply closed down. This seems to me unfortunate, as it had been such a useful source that really made a larger contribution, and that little is gained restricting so severely its distribution. I have tried to subscribe through the National Technical Information Service, but so far have never been able to get it to arrive, despite having paid in advance. Moreover, someone who has subscribed has told me that now instead of its being timely, there is a two month plus delay.

My question -- is there any way to be put on the list to receive the International Energy Statistical Review? I will be most appreciative indeed.

With kind regards.

Cordially,

Daniel Yergin

P.S. I thought you might like to have a copy of the revised edition of Energy Future. Note, particularly, Appendix 2.
